6. It's Not Fair!

about the book

Life couldn't have been better for Buzzie Bee, until she overheard some disturbing news. Buzzie became furious and started a revolt among the younger bees. The angry bees left the hive to start their own. In the new hive the young bees argue and fight over who should do the work. They finally discover that working together with a leader is the only way to have a happy hive. They return and follow the Queen Bee.

This intriguing story demonstrates the influence of an angry thought and the power of a wise answer. Sommer teaches the importance of citizenship, teamwork and responsibility.

Citizenship

As Buzzie flew by a house, she saw some flowers on a windowsill. “Oh good!” she said.

As she gathered pollen from the flowers, she exclaimed, “This is great! These flowers have lots of pollen. I’ll be able to take lots of food back to the hive.”

Buzzie was a good citizen, she was eager to share with others the food that she found. Notice that good citizens are happy people.

Team Work

Then Buzzie saw other flowers on the table. “Look at them!” she exclaimed.

Buzzie quickly flew to the other flowers. “This is great!” she said as she gathered the pollen. “These flowers also have lots of pollen. I can’t wait to tell the other bees about my great find.”

Along with being a good citizen, Buzzie was a team worker. She gladly wanted to tell others when she had found food. Now as a team they could work together..

Complaining

Before this, Buzzie was a very happy bee. But Buzzie heard everything that Danny had said.

As she flew back to the hive, she began complaining. “It’s not fair! Why do we worker bees have to do all the work? We gather all the food, clean the cells, make the honeycomb, take care of the babies, feed the queen, air-condition the hive, and guard against enemies. All we do is work, work, work! It’s not fair!”

The more Buzzie thought about it, the angrier she became. When she got back to the hive, she was furious.

We need to think before we act on what we hear. Buzzie believed she was a foolish worker bee—but she wasn’t. She became bitter and complained because she believed the bad report.

Seeking Advice From the Wise

“Look at us poor workers!” complained Buzzie. “We gather all the food, clean the cells, make the honeycomb, take care of the babies, feed the queen, air-condition the hive, and guard against enemies. All we do is work, work, work! It’s not fair!”

Then a guard named Fuzzy pointed to her stinger and explained, “When we use our stingers, like Tilly just did, we die. It’s not fair that we have to give our lives for the hive.”

“That’s right!” complained all the young guards.

“Wait!” yelled Wizbee, the oldest bee. “It is fair! It’s been proven—working with a leader brings happiness.”

But Buzzie was not interested in what Wizbee had to say. She was furious.

If you want to avoid problems and become successful, seek advice from the wise. One of the best sources of advice is from your parents.

Being Rebellious

Then Buzzie announced, “Everyone who is unhappy, follow me! I know where we can start a new hive.”

“Hoorayyyy!!!” yelled the young worker bees.

“Wait!” yelled Wizbee. “It is fair what we have! Let me explain it to you.”

But the young bees were mad. They ignored Wizbee and flew out of the hive.

Buzzie convinced the other younger bees of the unfairness of their hive. Now they were so mad that they started a riot in the hive; and they had no interest to listen to anyone's ideas. They wanted to start their dream hive.

Being Unselfish

The angry bees followed Buzzie to a large oak tree. When they gathered together, Buzzie asked, "Does anyone have any ideas?"

They began offering suggestions. The smaller bees spoke first. "The bigger bees should guard the hive because they're the strongest."

"No!" yelled the bigger bees. "The smaller bees should be the guards. They fly the fastest."

And so it went. No one wanted to be a guard because they were afraid they might have to die. Everyone wanted what they thought was the easiest job—a fanner.

Instead of wanting what was best for their hive, the selfish bees were looking out only for themselves.

Leadership

When Buzzie arrived at the hive, the older worker bees were happily working together. Buzzie flew to Wizbee and asked, "Do you have any suggestions on how we can have a happy hive? We're having lots of problems working together."

"Who is your leader?" asked Wizbee.

"We don't have a leader," mumbled Buzzie.

"You can't have a happy hive without a leader," explained Wizbee. "You need a queen bee."

Everywhere you go there are leaders. Classes have teachers, schools have principals, businesses have presidents, homes have parents, the military has generals or admirals, cities have mayors, states have governors, and countries have rulers or presidents. Leaders are essential for success.

Apologizing

When the bees arrived, they bowed their heads before the queen bee and said, "We're sorry for complaining."

It isn't easy to say you're sorry when you do wrong. However, the mark of a great person is their willingness to apologize when they do wrong and say, "I'm sorry."

Forgiveness

"I forgive you," said the queen bee.

"Thank you," said the workers.

When the young worker bees said they were sorry, the queen bee forgave them. We should do the same. When others apologize to us, we should forgive them.

Working With a Leader Brings Happiness

That night Buzzie said to Wizbee, "You were right. Working with a leader brings happiness."

From that day on, no bee ever complained about her work. And if any bee ever heard someone say, "Look at the poor worker bee," she would not listen. The bees knew that happy bees are those who obey their leader and work together.

Now whenever bees went looking for food, they would sing this song:

Working together,
How happy we'll be.
Working and helping,
Big smiles we'll see.
