“I have reviewed your recently published book, Schools in Crisis: Training for Success or Failure?, and have found it one of the most comprehensive and accurate descriptions of public education in the 1980’s.”

Robert W. Sweet, Jr., Senior Staff Member, The White House Office of Policy Development, Washington, DC (Education advisor to President Ronald Reagan)

Having reviewed most of the above mentioned book, I have found it to be very interesting and easy to read. It holds one’s attention, which should be a plus for students. Overall, I find the book to be accurate when reading from a conservative perspective...The author has definitely presented some of the problems presently facing education and possible alternatives for dealing with the problems.”

Dr. Sam Evans, Chairman, Education Department, William Woods College

“Carl Sommer has explored in depth and has given food for thought in what is wrong with our public schools, but more important he has given examples of how to correct them. He has not evaded the subject of making recommendations on how to correct the problems and his recommendations are concise and to the point.”

Dr. Robert C. Scherer, District Superintendent, Southern Kern Unified School District, Rosamond, CA

“Schools in Crisis: Training for Success or Failure is, to say the least, a very interesting textbook. Because it contains a wealth of polemical in- and out-of-school situations, discussion points are constantly generated to meet the needs of students and professors.”

Dr. Howard D. Hill, Professor and Chairman, South Carolina State College, Orangeburg, SC

“Never more than today has our society needed such a real and practical benchmark of reference for public education. Never has it been more crucial to have detailed perspectives of today’s public schools, drawn from actual experience and written with distinct clarity and understanding.”

Ray Powell, Former Superintendent of Public Schools, South St. Paul, MN
